

Topics for Bulletins in 2021

It has always been the desire of these bulletins to address the questions and concerns of the hardbanding community and their customers who own and rent downhole tubular goods. We get many comments regarding the topics that we write about, but we can't adequately address these subjects unless we hear from you – our readers. If there are any hardbanding issues that you would like for us to write about in future editions, please let anyone from Postle or our technical center representatives know and we will be glad to offer an opinion.

Happy New Year!!

We Can't Wait for 2021

Oh what a year we all have had. Words can't explain what our industry, and our world has endured over the 2020 calendar year. In this month's bulletin we will put aside the technical aspects of hardbanding and welding to focus on the personal side of our employees, customers, and friends. Speaking of customers and friends, we know a number of them that have lost their jobs due to the oil & gas market crash. We also know friends and colleagues that have been afflicted with the coronavirus. It seems appropriate to end the year with a wish list for 2021 that we would like to extend to everyone who views our monthly newsletter.

New Year's Wish List:

- That the medical professionals around the world effectively navigate us all through the successful treatment and cure of this miserable pandemic.
- May those that have lost their jobs due to the economic devastation that has occurred to the oil & gas industry, as well as other affected industries, gain meaningful employment soon.
- That travel bans throughout the world will soon be lifted so that people may reunite with family members they haven't seen for too long and global industries like ours can meet in-person again.
- May consumer confidence in commodity markets, like oil & gas, continue the stable and steady rebound in order to lead us financially out of these globally depressed markets.
- We hope that the world will remember that – Alone we can do so little, but together we can do so much.
- That the summer of '21 eclipses all the great summers of our time as we celebrate defeating Covid 19!
- Finally, Postle Industries wishes all of our customers, friends, colleagues and employees a happy and healthy holiday season.
